Churchgoers Killed In Bus Accident

Weirton, Virginia, Apr. 29.

Five persons were killed and more than 40 others injured today when a bus loaded with churchgoers ran wild down a steep hill and crashed into a concrete retaining wall.

Weirton police said the brakes of the vehicle, operated by the Pittsburgh and Weirton Bus Company, apparently failed about half-way down the mile-long grade and it began picking up speed.

Joseph Kraini, 35, the driver, moved in and out of traffic, his horn blasting, as he attempted to bring the heavy vehicle under control. He was unable to make the right angle turn at the foot of the hill and the bus crashed into the concrete wall.

Kraini was killed in the crash. His body was hurled 300 feet by the force of the impact. Most of the passengers were thrown to the front of the crumpled bus in a tangled mass. Workers from the bus company garage, located only a few feet from the scene of the accident, used acetylene torches to free passengers. "It was horrible," said one of the people jammed in there in a big tangled mass, screaming and moaning. "It all happened so quick we didn't actually see the accident. First we heard the horn blowing and then the scream of tires as Joe tried to make the corner. Then there was a crash. It even shook the garage. He must have been doing 70 miles an hour when he ploughed into the wall."

Queuille's Challenge

Paris, Apr. 29.

The Prime Minister, M. Henri Queuille, staked the life of his Cabinet today on a National Assembly vote of confidence on the contested electoral reform bill to clear the road for nation-wide elections in June.

By demanding the vote, M. Queuille cut short an all-night session sparked by catcalls and flut lights. His move was interpreted as a final warning to the Assembly that unless the slightly modified government bill receives the required constitutional majority, the Premier and his Cabinet would resign.

By moving a question of confidence, M. Queuille also scored a tactical success by preventing a Communist manoeuvre for a man-by-man vote which would hold the bill from a final vote for a few days more. The vote will be taken at midnight Tuesday.—United Press.

Nothing To Say

Cannes, Apr. 29.

Prince Aly Khan has received no "official" word of the reported intention of his wife Rita Hayworth to get a divorce or separation from him and therefore has nothing to say, his secretary said today.—United Press.

Returned To Power

MR. R. C. MENZIES

Menzies Expects To Win His Objective Despite Losses

Melbourne, Apr. 29.

After a day of counting votes in the Australian General Election, the Prime Minister, Mr. Robert Menzies, was tonight in sight of his objective—a majority in both the House of Representatives and Senate.

By last night his Liberal Country Party coalition seemed assured of majority in the House. Today, with four of the five million votes counted it appeared that he could expect to have 31 seats in the Senate to Labour's 29.

Key state in the election was Queensland. The other five states all looked like sending five Labour and five Government candidates each to the Senate. From Queensland, the present trend is maintained, six Government and four Labour Senators will go to Canberra.

It was because a Labour majority in the Senate could block the Government's bills that the Prime Minister asked for the dissolution of both Houses.

MUST POLL 54.56%

To gain six of 10 Senate seats in any state, a Party must poll 54.56 of the total vote. Of the votes so far counted in Queensland the Liberal and Country Party have polled 54.5 per cent.

A State by State position of the parties was:

New South Wales: Government 23, Labour 22, Doubtful 2.
Victoria: Government 18, Labour 15, Doubtful 2.
South Australia: Government 5, Labour 5, Doubtful 0.
Western Australia: Government 5, Labour 2, Doubtful 1.
Tasmania: Government 3, Labour 1, Doubtful 1.

W. Germans Go To The Polls

Frankfurt, Apr. 29.

West German voters went to the polls today in two of the Federal Republic's 11 States to cast ballots expected to show a further decline in popular favour of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Right Wing coalition government.

In the French-Zone state of Rhinland-Pfalz, about 35 per cent of 2,015,500 eligible voters braved occasional showers by noon to cast votes for the new 100-member State Assembly.

Twenty-seven per cent of 1,700,000 eligible voters in the British-Zone state of Schleswig-Holstein turned out by noon to elect 1,362 new Municipal Councils and 21 County Councils.

Results in the heavily Catholic wine-growing state of Rhinland-Pfalz will be particularly closely watched for indications of a trend away from Dr. Adenauer. Although the Socialist Opposition leader, Dr. Kurt Schumacher, has worked hard to make the Schuman Plan as burning an issue today as rearmament was in the State elections six months ago, the growing swell against Dr. Adenauer is believed to express more general dissatisfaction with the government's faltering economic policy.

The Socialists, campaigning on a platform opposing German rearmament and the Schuman Plan to pool Europe's coal and steel, held the lead in the Rhinland-Pfalz returns as expected.

Returns from 851 precincts gave the Socialists 49,112, the Christian Democrats 47,014, Free Democrats 20,400 and the Communists 3,211. The snowing, cool weather kept many of the eligible voters home.—United Press.

There was a lull in the immediate Seoul area as the Allies dug in for an expected siege of the capital city. Both land and sea-borne artillery and planes were preparing for the Chinese siege attacks.

The Allied troops were behind barbed wire entanglements that would slow up the Communists' "human sea" tactics, while a ring of artillery would inflict enormous losses on the Reds.

Communist vehicles flooding North Korean roads with supply traffic received the greatest blows of the war from Allied night-flying aircraft on Sunday night, a Fifth Air Force summary said today.

Allied fighters and light bombers flew more than 100 sorties during the night. Sighting a record 3,880 vehicles on the move in all parts of Communist-held Korea, the planes bombed and strafed more than 1,000 of them and claimed at least 240 destroyed or damaged. Most air crews, however, said they knocked out many more but could not confirm them because of darkness.

At least 1,000 of the vehicles were sighted in bulldozed areas immediately behind the battle-lines with the largest concentrations in the west, where the battle for Seoul is just beginning.

About 200 were sighted near Uijongbu and about the same number across the Parallel at Namchonjon in the same highway net. At least 850 vehicles were sighted farther north of the roads from Binulju to Sariwon and another 500 were between Sariwon and the immediate front-line area. In day-light sorties on Sunday, the Fifth Air Force, in its first good day since Thursday, claimed approximately 800 enemy troops killed or wounded. Six hundred sorties were flown on Sunday.

Human streams of refugees crossed the Han on home-made ferries from Seoul or balanced precariously on floating wooden footbridges. The moaning of women and the crying of babies on their backs were common around the bridges.

The Eighth Army held strongly prepared defensive positions along the entire 85-mile front and Gen. Van Fleet's announcement indicated that the Allied withdrawal had come to an end—at least for the present. He said, "I can't say I will or I won't stop him (enemy) north of the Han. But we are in good positions on good defensive terrain in the Seoul area."

Major-General William Hoge, Commander of the United States Ninth Corps, pointed out to newsmen that the Chinese so far had committed only part of their force and that the holding of the Han River line "depends on what is thrown at us."

The Seoul area was quiet as darkness fell on Sunday evening except for the thunder of artillery and the howl of big shells lobbed into Communist positions by the big guns of the heavy cruiser Toledo, nearly 20 miles away.

Sunday night's Eighth Army communique disclosed a fire fight near Seoul on Saturday night. It said that two friendly companies surrounded by the Communists northwest of the city were rescued and brought back to the United Nations lines by a task force on Sunday morning. It said the patrol in the area counted 900 Communist dead.

SHARP STRIKE

United Press correspondent William Hoge, reported from the west central front that the Communist troops struck sharply at the Allied forces dug in on the north bank of the river. In one hour-long battle 40 to 50 Communists were killed as they tried to storm Allied positions with rifles, machineguns and grenades. Chinese mortars and artillery also harassed Allied lines.

Allied patrols probing out north of the new United Nations positions contacted the Communists east of abandoned Chunchon on Sunday, but found no indication that the Reds had moved in force into the vacuum created by the Allied withdrawal.

Of the four patrols ranging ahead of the new line, three made contact with small Communist groups. East of Chunchon, an Allied patrol was fired on by an estimated squad of Communists. While the patrol was engaging the Communists, artillery fire fell into the area.

Another patrol saw an estimated 300 Communists east and northeast of Chunchon. There were some women in this group. The sky over this front was clear today and the drone of Allied fighters, planes was almost constant. It had rained during the last three days.—United Press.

British Troops' Heroic Action

On The Korean Front, Apr. 29.

The first clear reports of how the Communist armies in Korea crashed and broke against two British brigades began to filter through tonight.

Major-General William Hoge, American Ninth Corps Commander, today described the British 27th Brigade's action in plugging a 10-mile wide gap in the United Nations line north of Kapyong last week as "superb".

Australian troops and Canadians who bore the brunt of the Chinese onslaught in that sector had in his opinion killed as many Chinese Communists "as the combined strength of two Commonwealth battalions".

This did not include thousands of Chinese Communists wounded by the Brigade and by New Zealanders and Americans.

General Hoge said that the Chinese Communists probed for a weak spot in the United Nations lines, found it north of Kapyong and punched hard.

Reports reaching here showed that at the cost of very heavy casualties the 27th Brigade stopped the full weight of the Chinese attack down the main corridor towards Seoul.

North of Kapyong the 27th Brigade was rushed into action to stop a dangerous break-through where the South Koreans had collapsed.

The 27th Brigade also suffered but like the 23rd stood firm and the Chinese retreated to a standstill before their withdrawing in conformity with the tactical plan of the United Nations Commander.

Turks and Belgians joined in actions which will make regimental history.—Reuter.

SEVERAL SHARP INFANTRY ENGAGEMENTS were reported as the Communists made the deepest penetration into south Korean territory since the offensive started a week ago. The heaviest fighting was near the confluence of the Han and Pukhan Rivers, 20 miles east of the capital.

Shawcross' Formula For World Peace

Realistic Approach To Problems

Stockton-on-Tees, Apr. 29.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, Britain's newly appointed President of the Board of Trade, said here today that Britain must seek to change the policy of the Communist States "by showing at once our strength — and our good faith."

In an appeal to an end to a world situation which diverted the resources of the world to armaments instead of the welfare of mankind, he declared: "We must go forward with Europe, with our Commonwealth, with America, in making ourselves so strong that we can resist attack."

"But, at the same time, with our growing military power, strengthening our influence in negotiation, we shall pursue a vigorous and positive policy for peace."

"We know very well that anti-Communism and rearmament are in themselves negative policies," he added. "Taken alone they are not enough. We want to come to grips with the real problems — social, political and economic — which divide the world."

"Grave as they are, there is not one which cannot be solved by quiet discussion round a table. That is what we want. Not propaganda battles about bogus problems put up for the purpose, not a manoeuvring for position, one against the other, but a frank and realistic approach to the problems, not embarrassed by too much publicity, in which each side is prepared for a reasonable amount of give and take."

Community Digging Project

Bulandshahr, Apr. 29.

The Prime Minister of India, Pandit Nehru, spade in hand, led a volunteer brigade of villagers who today began digging a mile-long channel to reclaim low-lying land for crops.

Mr Nehru dug a few yards of dry hard earth to inaugurate the community digging. Among those who joined him were the President of the Congress Party, 72-year-old Mr Purshottamas Tandon, and several Ministers of the Uttar Pradesh (United Provinces) Government.

The digging was at the village of Hazratpur, 10 miles from Bulandshahr, on the western border of the United Provinces midway between Allahabad and Meerut.

The channel, when completed, will drain the flood water during the rains.

Speaking to the villagers after the inauguration, Mr Nehru referred to "near-famine conditions" in the provinces of Bihar and Madras, and asked them to try to increase food production as far as it lay in their power.

When war clouds were thickening on the horizon, Indians must not depend on outside help but must rely on themselves to fulfil their own basic needs, he said.

Mr Nehru has been on a two-day visit to Bulandshahr to attend meetings of the Congress Party of Uttar Pradesh, his home province.—Reuter.

SCIENTIST'S CAVEMAN THEORY

Tehran, Apr. 29.

Many years, perhaps 75,000 of them, ago, three cavemen warmed themselves around a fire and gazed Northward across the Caspian Sea to what is now Russia—then the roof fell in.

This month an American Professor and a young Harvard graduate discovered what was left of the cave. And the shattered bones they found since are causing a lot of comment in the worlds of science and anthropology.

The Professor, Carleton S. Coon, and his assistant, Louis Dupree, believe that these cavemen are the oldest human remains ever found. If they are right, there are going to be some upsets in the generally-accepted theories on evolution.

For instance, these Caspian cavemen were just like modern man—except that their brain cavities were a bit smaller.

Professor Coon says that true human beings—homo sapiens—existed at the same time as the cruder types.

The Professor, who has been digging round the Middle East since 1924, says that the Caspians were a cultured lot. They used farming implements and could make fire.

Professor Coon was digging on the shore of the Caspian Sea last summer when he noticed a small opening in a rocky cliff. He returned in January and found three skeletons.

The roof of the cave had apparently fallen on them, and the skeletons had been preserved under the debris.—Associated Press.

Polling In Japan

Tokyo, Apr. 29.

Major Japanese political parties tonight wound up a one-month campaign for the second and crucial round of the nationwide local elections in a blare of loudspeakers and election promises.

Japanese voters will go to the polls on Monday for the second successive week, this time to elect governors in 34 prefectures and assemblymen in all 46 Japanese prefectures.

Election officials predict heavy balloting rivaling the 91 per cent turn-out of last Monday.

The major issue in the elections is the question of a bi-lateral peace treaty with the United States and other Allied countries and the problem of furnishing military bases in Japan to the United States in return for American protection.—United Press.

Tragedy In U.S. Zone

Frankfurt, Apr. 29.

The German police today found the bodies of Necathi Cakir, identified as a Turkish newspaper correspondent, his wife and six-year-old twin children in the gas-filled kitchen of their home.

The kitchen had been sealed to prevent gas escaping and empty sleeping tablet containers were found on the floor. Two school books were found on the kitchen table with a note requesting that they be returned to the school. There was no suicide note.

The U.S. Army Press Centre, which accredits all foreign correspondents in the U.S. Zone of Germany, said records showed Cakir was correspondent for the Turkish Hissat Mecmua. His wife was German.—United Press.

Senator Appeals For Halt To Feuding Over MacArthur Dismissal

Washington, Apr. 29.

Senator Paul Douglas (Democrat, Illinois) warned today that only a miracle could prevent World War III and he called on Americans to stop feuding over the dismissal of General Douglas MacArthur.

Senator Douglas thus joined the Republican leader, Mr Harold Stassen, in appealing to the nation to close its ranks and forgo the bitter partisan battle over foreign policy—at a time of grave world crisis.

But his plea appeared to be destined to get the same cold reception from both sides which had greeted Mr Stassen's proposal yesterday that President Truman and General MacArthur hold a "reconciliation" meeting.

All signs indicated that, far from subsiding, the fight over Mr Stassen's proposal will mount to fever pitch on Thursday, when the Senate Armed Services Committee opens their historic interrogation with General MacArthur as the first witness.

The fireworks will start on Monday when the combined Committees, under the chairmanship of Senator Richard Russell (Democrat, Georgia), meet to decide whether General MacArthur will be heard behind closed doors or will testify publicly with television cameras present.

A United Press poll showed that the investigators are split on a strict party line. On the one hand, Eleven Democrats backed Senator Russell's demand that hearings be conducted in private to prevent accidental disclosure of top national secrets. Seven Republicans said they would fight for public hearings on all points except actual secret documents. Four Republicans and three Democrats of the 25-man Committee were not available for comment.

In preparation for the hearings, high military officials spent a busy Sunday at the Pentagon poring over literally thousands of documents which are to be made available to the investigators. Senator Russell said the Defense Secretary, General George Marshall, had promised him that all possible top secret military dispatches dealing with MacArthur's dismissal would be "down-graded" so they could be made public.

BIG QUESTION

One of the big questions the documents are expected to answer is whether the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff agreed, with General MacArthur's proposals for waging limited war on Red China. MacArthur implied, in his address to the joint session of Congress, that they did but the Joint Chiefs said later that they would tell investigators about basic differences with MacArthur.

Senator Douglas noted that the MacArthur controversy had already engendered so much heat that Senator Robert Taft (Republican, Ohio) had publicly denounced the Joint Chiefs of Staff and their chairman, General Omar Bradley. Warning that such attacks were rocking the ship of State at a perilous time, Senator Douglas said: "It will be a miracle if we keep peace in view of Russia's constant determination to conquer the world."

He added that the best hope of avoiding war lay in becoming strong enough quickly and said the task required all American shoulders to the wheel.—United Press.

SENATOR REGRETS

Washington, Apr. 29.

Republican Senator Styles Bridges regrets very much the attempts to turn the firing of General Douglas MacArthur into a partisan political issue.

"Of course the Administration is Democratic and if General MacArthur is right, Mr Truman and Mr Dean Acheson are wrong," the senator Republican Senator said. "But they are not wrong because they are Democrats."

Mr Bridges considers the MacArthur controversy a "fundamental question of who is right and who is wrong. I do not believe the Democrats want to be wrong any more than the Republicans. By and large the opposite sides of this issue cut across party lines."

ATTLEE FACING THREAT

Now Challenge By The Opposition

London, Apr. 29.

The Labour Government, weakened by internal crisis over its rearmament budget, faces fresh danger in the House of Commons this week.

The Government ranks have been tightly closed since the recent walk-out of three Ministers. But Mr Clement Attlee's Administration remains highly vulnerable in Parliament.

Key to the question of survival or downfall is still held by Mr Aneurin Bevan, Left-wing leader who led the Cabinet revolt.

Though now out of the Government, he and his sympathisers still have the power to hasten its end.

A challenging motion on raw materials put forward by Mr Winston Churchill and his Conservatives for debate on Tuesday confronts Mr Bevan with an immediate difficulty.

Mr Bevan, with Mr Harold Wilson, Board of Trade President, and Mr John Freeman, a junior Minister, resigned mainly in the belief that the £4,700 million arms programme would not work out because of the shortage of raw materials.

They have promised not to endanger the Government. But the Conservative motion complicates their position. It expresses anxiety that the arms programme approved by Parliament in February was based on defence production estimates which were not accepted by the Ministers chiefly concerned.

The problem for Mr Bevan is—Can he help the Government with his vote to reject this motion in view of the stand he has taken?

Mr Bevan suffered a triple defeat last week in his challenges to the now almost wholly "Moderate" Cabinet. His stand against Mr Attlee and Mr Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was rejected by large majorities of the Parliamentary Labour Party, by the National Executive of the Labour Party in the country, and the leadership of the 8,000,000-strong Trades Union Congress.

But since then Mr Bevan has gained evidence of support for his views from some sections of Labour's following.—Reuter.

BRITISH HINT TO AMERICA

Enfield, Apr. 29.

Mr James Callaghan, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, said here today that if America's rearmament programme consumed raw materials which would otherwise be sent abroad it would be impossible for Britain to carry out its part of the defence bargain.

"We cannot defend ourselves with one hand tied behind our back," he said, emphasising Britain's need for machine tools as well as raw materials.

Mr Callaghan said that there was a feeling in the United States that they could cope with the rearmament programme with little need to disturb the American citizen's standard of living.

Britain's defence programme need not involve "any substantial reduction in our austere standards of life if the American people are prepared to suffer some cuts in their own standard," he declared.—Reuter.

Hunt For Sub. Continuing

Chatham, Apr. 29. Wives and relatives of the 75 men lost recently in the British submarine Affray attended a memorial service at the Royal Naval Barracks here today. Search ships are still looking for the Affray, which disappeared in the English Channel 12 days ago after a routine dive. The search may continue for months. — Reuter.

CABINET TO MEET ON IRAN

London, Apr. 29. The Cabinet will today consider the action of the Iranian Majlis in nationalising the oil industry and a strong representation may be made to the Shah of Iran, diplomatic quarters said today.

The Government here is maintaining complete official silence regarding latest developments in Iran, but the Foreign Office is known to be in continuous exchange with the British Ambassador in Teheran, Sir Francis Shepherd.

One official said today that Britain considered any unilateral denunciation of the oil agreement with the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company illegal. Sir Francis might make that view known in a personal audience with the Shah, who must approve any nationalisation action.

The British were known to have been urged by the United States to accept nationalisation and then try to make the best possible deal with Iran, but diplomatic quarters said today that it was putting the cart before the horse—that some arrangement should be worked out in advance before Britain could give her consent to nationalisation as required under the terms of the contract. —United Press.

Detention Of Israeli MP

New York, Apr. 29. Ben Aliezer, a member of the Israeli Parliament, and his wife, Judith, were detained by immigration officials on their arrival here by air today.

They were sent to Ellis Island for further examination. Ben Aliezer and his wife flew here from Israel by way of Paris. They were questioned for several hours before being taken to Ellis Island. Ben Aliezer had come to speak on the relief and rehabilitation of Jewish war veterans. —Reuter.

ITALY WEEDING REDS OUT OF CONSCRIPT ARMY

Rome, Apr. 29. There are 25,000 Communists in the Italian army, representing 15 percent of its total strength, official sources revealed.

The sources said the heavy influx of conscripts makes it difficult to weed out party members from army ranks but Italian officials do not believe they are a danger.

"Most of them are Communists in name," one official said.

The army is limited to 250,000 men by the Italian peace treaty but that figure includes 75,000 Carabinieri, or federal police. The 175,000-man army takes in about 60,000 conscripts a year, of which many are Communists.

The Carabinieri long ago weeded out Communists or leftist sympathizers. The navy and air force, limited to 25,000 men each, have also been able to make tight political screenings.

The problem of Communism in the army has received much attention in top Western planning. But no one in the Italian army or Interior Ministry, which controls the police, believes the Communist soldiers represent a danger.

The officials are worried chiefly about the Communists outside the army—particularly those working in big industrial plants. One official said many of the army conscripts come from small towns which are in the control of the Communists and the youths become Communists "just as a matter of course."

"In the army, they learn to think a little for themselves and we are quite pleased with the number that forget all about Communism at the end of their time in the army," he said.

CONVERTED Police authorities regard these Communists as almost no problem at all. Local police report to the army on every conscript and every town has a police register of Communist Party members or followers.

When a Communist enters the army, he gets special supervision and is watched closely until officials determine whether he is a real militant party member or just a Communist in name only. Special officers then take up the task of converting them.

No effort is made to segregate the Communists in the army since military officials believe the best way to convert them is to have them live with non-Communists.

Western officials who did not wish to be identified believe the army is handling the Communist problem well.

"Most of these young Communists are illiterate," one authoritative observer said. "After they get three good meals a day and some decent clothes, they are pretty safe as far as the Government is concerned. But the army is careful about the majority of them." —United Press.

"MONTY" SHOCKED BRADLEY

New York, Apr. 29. Field-Marshal Viscount Montgomery's plan for the 1944 Western drive was one of the most imaginative of the war, General Omar Bradley, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, says in today's installment of his book, "A Soldier's Story."

He goes on: "Had the pious, teetotaling Montgomery wobbled into S.H.A.E.F. with a hangover I could not have been more astonished than I was by the daring adventure he proposed."

Although General Bradley—then U.S. Ground Commander in Europe—and other American commanders favored alternative routes, General Eisenhower, he says, accepted Montgomery's scheme as a "falg gamble."

"Of the 9,000 British troops who parachuted into that ill-fated bridgehead, fewer than 2,500 infiltrated back into our lines," recalls General Bradley, but adds:

"There is a quality to adversity that summons the noblest in British valour, and as a result valour often so obscures defeat that acts of heroism are remembered long after the defeat is forgotten."

DISCUSSIONS ON SHORTAGE OF PAPER

Washington, Apr. 29. Representatives of 12 nations will meet here tomorrow to discuss the critical shortage of pulp and paper, it was announced tonight.

This is the seventh committee set up by the Conference to consider production and distribution of strategic materials.

Vogeler's Message To Free World

Vienna, Apr. 29. Robert Vogeler, still suffering from shock from his 17-month ordeal in a Hungarian prison, told Americans today that "God gave us the mission" to destroy Communism before all the world lost its freedom.

His eyes red-rimmed from lack of sleep, his hands clasped to keep them from shaking, the 38-year-old American businessman said in a tremendous voice, "What happened to me could happen to anyone. I feel that every American individual should realize that."

Vogeler was released at the Hungarian border on Saturday and within two hours was at his Vienna home where his beautiful blonde wife and two small sons have been waiting for him since late in 1949. But 24 hours later in a spacious garden behind the house he was still bewildered. His voice choked with emotion, "Time and again he has to squeeze his wife's hand to assure himself that he was no longer dreaming in solitary confinement. Some of his sentences were not clear. He would not allow anyone, even his children, to stand behind him."

Vogeler said he was going to take his family to the United States soon. He said his sons, Bobby, 21, and Billy, nine, want to see a baseball game. Vogeler went to bed at one and woke at six although he had been given a strong sedative.

Vogeler's wife said he was suffering badly from shock. She said, "He used to be so proud that he was sometimes impossible. Now he is just like a baby and always wants to hold my hand."

Scientists Studying Solar Atomic Energy

Washington, Apr. 29. The "Big Eye," telescope atop the Palomar mountain in southern California, is pictured as an important tool for scientists in their attempts to match atomic energy on earth with solar atomic energy that scientists are attempting to duplicate in production of the hydrogen bomb.

The new possible role of the 200-inch Hale telescope, the largest in the world and the "eye" that can look 1,000 million light years into space, was reported by Dr. Ira Bowen, director of the Mount Wilson and Palomar observatories, Pasadena, California.

He told the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences that the mountain top telescope is hard at work these days after its final polishing job, and new delicate auxiliary equipment including spectrographic devices have been added to assist the "Big Eye" in its scanning of far-off heavens.

The telescope is named for the famed astronomer, Dr. George Hale.

Dr. Bowen said: "The question of the chemical composition of the stars and other astronomical objects is becoming of increasing importance because of recent advances in nuclear physics."

Up to the creation of the 200-inch telescope there was no "tool" available to make a comprehensive study of the stars in action. He reported the "Big Eye" had already trained on rarified clouds of gas surrounding hot stars in far off distances and spectrographs of clouds are being used for study of chemical composition of gases and for analysis of internal motions of gaseous envelopes.

DEADLY ENERGY

The importance of the work with the 200-inch telescope in a study of the action of stars can be linked with the work of H-bomb scientists because in the exploding of a hydrogen bomb—transmutation of hydrogen into helium—the action of the sun and stars is actually duplicated on earth and with the resultant release of energy many times more powerful and deadly than radiation emitted from the atomic fission bomb.

Dr. Bowen estimated the "Big Eye" as a research tool will continue for 50 to 100 years to come. He said: "The complete story of the Palomar observatory and its accomplishments can only be told after the labours of many generations of astronomers have been completed." —United Press.

MINERS WALK OFF JOB

Tokyo, Apr. 29. Fifty thousand Japanese metal miners employed by the Taihei Mining Company struck for higher wages at the weekend and 15,000 more have been ordered to walk out tomorrow. The men, members of labour groups affiliated to the National Federation of Metal Mineworkers' Union, are demanding 9,000 yen (£29) a month bonus but the management is offering 4,000 yen.

Japanese Press reports said today that the strike would seriously affect production in chemical fibres, chemicals and fertilisers, but industries using copper and lead would not suffer so seriously because they have stockpiles. —Reuter.

Big 3's Serious Doubts

Paris, Apr. 29. The Western Powers expect to discover if Russia really wants a conference of the Foreign Ministers when the deputies begin their ninth week tomorrow.

Russian tactics at the discussions here over the last two or three weeks have raised serious doubts in the minds of the American, French and British delegations as to Russia's intentions in the amelioration of East-West tension.

The Soviet deputy, M. Andrei Gromyko, flatly rejected the new Western agenda tabled last Friday, which made two important concessions. Even though the West had included Trieste on their agenda, M. Gromyko still refuses to consider the Austrian treaty as suitable for the Foreign Ministers' meeting.

Negotiations on an Austrian treaty have been held over Soviet accusations that the Western Powers were violating the Italian Treaty in Trieste. The three Western deputies have said that their new agenda represents the limit of their concessions and that Russia must make a move which would render an agenda possible.

Observers consider that the crux of the deadlock is the armaments issue. The West maintains that armament levels should be discussed before reduction. Russia has insisted that reduction of armaments should take precedence.

Observers believe the West has no intention of accepting the Soviet wording on this item and M. Gromyko has similarly refused to budge.

If the deputies' conference fails, observers consider—and the test will come in the next week or 10 days—it will be on this problem. However, it might still be possible for the Foreign Ministers' to meet with two workings of the armaments item on their agenda. —Reuter.

Pakistani Warning On Kashmir

New York, Apr. 29. The Pakistani Ambassador to the United States, Mr. Mirza Asad Hassan Ispahani, warned today that Pakistan and India would be unable to play a greater role in world affairs and contribute fully to peace efforts as long as the Kashmir issue was not settled.

Mr. Ispahani, who arrived here aboard the Queen Mary en route to Washington from routine consultations in Karachi, said:

"So long as the Kashmir problem remains, one of the most explosive issues in the world continues. Therefore, more than ever it is imperative that the United Nations should act positively now."

Asked by reporters whether Pakistan could send troops to Korea, the Ambassador replied: "So long as the Kashmir problem is involved, both Pakistan and India will be dissipating their energies and resources watching each other. If you have a fire in your own backyard, you do not send help to a fire in a distant barn." —United Press.

FREIGHTER IN DANGER

San Francisco, Apr. 29. Heavy seas pounding the Japanese freighter Kenkoku Maru, and aground on a short, rocky beach 80 miles north of here, may force removal of her crew, the Coast Guard said tonight.

A breeches buoy rescue party is on its way to her overland from Arena Cove station, a Coast Guard officer said.

A radio message from the ship's master, Captain Shigeo Fujima, said: "Need breeches buoy rigged to beach soonest." An attempt to float the ship failed this morning. But salvagers planned to try again tonight. —Associated Press.

MISS MENUHIN IS GLAD SHE'S MRS NICHOLAS...

By EVELYN IRONS

OFF from London to Paris soon to give three concerts with brother Yehudi is pianist Hephzibah Menuhin, 31 next month. But what a pity, she thinks, that this will prevent her from going to Scotland with her husband to buy an Aberdeen Angus bull.

Thirteen years ago, this pocket-size blonde with the deep blue eyes, the pale face and the bright, brisk and practical manner threw up an already brilliant career in music to marry Austrian Lindsay Nicholas and

Does Mrs Nicholas, playing the busy housewife and mother, ever pine for the glitz of the concert pianist's life? Does she miss the applause, the adulation and the bouquets that came the way of Hephzibah Menuhin?

'SO HAPPY'

"NEVER for one minute," she says in the slight Australian accent she has acquired (she speaks Russian, French, German, Italian and Spanish as well). "I have never been so happy in my life. Look at my husband—he is a happy and contented man. Isn't that the greatest success anyone could wish for?"

She certainly does not miss the money. She, and Yehudi can, it is true, earn around says, being brought up in either faith, but will choose their own when they are old enough.

What is the year's biggest excitement on the farm that is three miles from the nearest neighbour, 17 miles from the nearest small town? Says Hephzibah, "The Woolshed Ball." To the Nicholas's woolshed come 600 neighbours and their children from a radius of 200 miles around. Hephzibah is busy for days beforehand making preparations which include a heady wine called Jungle Juice to sell at 6d. a glass. Proceeds go to her dearest project—the children's travelling library of 4,000 books which she runs herself.

PLAYED AT 4

HEPHZIBAH enjoys concerts, loves the theatre; in London she has been out every night. Her taste—serious. ("The Consul excited me so much I couldn't sleep afterwards.")

But at home Mrs Nicholas is content to go to bed at 10.30 and rise at 7 each morning.

There is a fortnightly film show at the Nicholas's farm, to which all the neighbours are invited.

Most evenings there is music, usually from the family's vast collection of gramophone records. Sometimes Mr Nicholas plays the organ and his wife plays the piano. Since music ceased to be her work she finds she enjoys it infinitely more.

"But I don't practise," says Yehudi's sister. "Only once a year or so when I am giving a concert, I put in a spell of five hours a day at the piano."

Although their mother played the piano at four and their uncle Yehudi clamoured for his first violin at three, neither of the two Nicholas boys plays any musical instrument or drudges at scales and arpeggios. Hephzibah believes that they should not be forced to learn if they show no natural inclination. She herself gave her first concert in San Francisco at the age of eight but she is perfectly content that Kronrad is a born farmer, already handy with his father's sheep and cattle.

She idolises her famous brother. When Londoners hear her for the third time (she played there with Yehudi when she was 14 and again in 1947), they will notice how modest she is in his presence.

PUZZLED

MANY people have puzzled vainly over the sudden outcrop of musical genius in these children of poor parents who originally came from South Russia and emigrated to Palestine to San Francisco. But there is no mystery about where Hephzibah got the ideas which led her to what most would call the wilderness. Her affinities are with the Kibbutzim of her ancestral Israel.

"I believe in community living—and that doesn't mean Communism," she says. "It means groups of people living together for the common good, eating and working communally. I believe that the two countries of the future are Israel and Australia."

(World Copyright Reserved.—London Express Service.)

Mrs. Nicholas with Marston and Kronrad in London.

live on his 25,000-acre sheep and cattle farm 137 miles from Melbourne, Victoria.

Since then she has emerged only occasionally to make an appearance-on-the-platform.

She and her brother open the Festival Hall on May 5 with a sonata recital: a month before that date, every one of the 4,000 places was booked.

That was not just because of brother Yehudi. Hephzibah is acknowledged to be a great performer in her own right; she may neglect her talent, but it never rusts. When Sir Malcolm Sargent was giving a concert with her in Australia, he thought at first that "a little bit of Mozart" would be as much as she could manage. But she insisted on the massive second concerto of Brahms, and amazed him by playing it like a master.

£2,000 for one concert. But tall, handsome Lindsay Nicholas is not only a farmer, but the son of a proprietary medicine king and a near-millionaire.

From this it must not be imagined that Hephzibah has retired to a life of luxury and leisure.

The Nicholas's big, one-storey, red-roofed homestead has no servants. Sons Kronrad (11) and Marston (seven next month) make their own beds. Husband Lindsay operates the vacuum cleaner.

Hephzibah does a bit of everything. Her favourite chores—cooking and making preserves.

She is devoted to her children: has ideas about education ("I'm an interfering member of the parents' committee—I insist on a say in how my sons are taught and fed"); ideas about diet ("We have plenty of vegetable juice, plenty of meat and never sugar—which is why my elder boy still has some of his milk teeth"). She is a Jewess and a Zionist; her husband a Methodist. The children are not; she

LALA KILLED 17 HUSBANDS

By ALWYN TEBBITT

New Delhi. SITTING dejectedly in the local gaol at Bhatinda, in the East Punjab, is pretty, 20-year-old Lala Wanti. She is accused of murdering 17 husbands in the last six years.

When the police arrested her, Lala had just sliced off the head of Husband Number 17 with an axe.

She explained that she was fed up with him, and that she had fallen in love with another young man who worked on the railway. As her husband refused to release her, she had no alternative but to kill him.

When the police accused Lala of murdering the 10 other young men she had married, she shrugged her slim shoulders.

Yes, she admitted, she had poisoned them, but all the bodies had "been cremated on the day of their deaths, according to Indian custom. There was no evidence to prove she had committed the crimes.

Lala married first at the age of 14 and murdered her husband three weeks later. He had made her work too hard, she said.

The rest of her husbands she had killed when she found someone more attractive—an average of one every four months.

Lala also admitted that it was a mistake using an axe to kill her last husband. It had caused her arrest.

If only she had used poison she would not have been caught. She would merely have laments her latest husband's death, as custom demanded, followed the body to the cremation ground, and would then have been free to go to the young man on the railway.

A fortunate young man. He would probably have been No. 18.

But the sickle Lala will not be hanged. Women have rarely been executed in India; and murder is not considered a particularly serious crime by the masses—one reason why detective stories are unpopular.

In fact, violent death is so common that unless it reaches a famous person it rarely makes even a small headline. Lala's 17 successful efforts were worth only two paragraphs in the local papers.

So Lala Wanti will now have an iron ring riveted on her shapely left leg and will be sent to prison for five or twelve years.

As she belongs to the sweeper class—the "Untouchables"—she will be given the dirtiest and most arduous jobs.

She can't understand why the police should create such a fuss over such a small matter.

When men sing, the heart of a nation is stirred

YOU may not be aware of it but the Arts Council has something very special up its sleeve. On June 1 there is to be a concert "unlike any other in the whole Festival Programme."

The event is to be called "Singing Englishmen." Thus does England make reply to Wales and Edinburgh.

The chorists are to be ordinary men and women chosen from the workers, and the songs will be gathered from the past. Herbert Morrison is particularly enthusiastic because, according to the official announcement, it seems that in the bad old days of Tory misrule our grandfathers and grandmothers sang at their work and in their private affairs.

AN ELEMENT OF DOUBT HERE

MR MORRISON wants to recover that spirit, if it is not too late. Perhaps it is this element of doubt which has caused him to book it for St. Pancras Town Hall rather than in the Festival Hall.

It is well known that a nation's songs are more important than its laws. On that fateful day in 1941 when Yugoslavia overthrew its faint-hearted leaders and defied Germany, I called at the Legation in London to pay my respects to the Minister and his wife.

They told me then that the peasants so loved their songs extolling love and pride of country that they would never bow down to a conqueror.

They still sing them in Yugoslavia, and the sound is carried on the wind even to the secret places of the Kremlin.

The worst of all attempts to create a rabble-rousing anthem is "The Red Flag," Bernard Shaw described it musically as being only fit for a funeral march for a fricasseeed eel.

This was rather hard on the nice old German who wrote it, but how was he to know that his Christmas carol "Tannenbaum" with its gentle words, "O Christmas Tree, O Christmas Tree, you do not bloom in winter alone," would become the anthem of red revolution?

If anything the words of "The Red Flag" are even more feeble. How would you like to stand up with clenched fist and distended nostrils and sing:—

Look round, the Frenchmen
love its blaze,
The sturdy German chants
its praise,
In Moscow's vaults its hymns
are sung,
Chicago swells the urging song,
Shades of Colonel Mac-
Cormick!

THE SOCIALISTS SING IT BETTER

YET on the day that Parliament assembled after the Socialist sweep in 1945 the Socialists sang that dirge in the sacred Chamber of the House of Commons. In fairness

I do not think they intended to do it.

What happened was this. When Winston Churchill came in Sir Waldron Smithers, who is an organist of no mean repute broke into that depressing English folk song known as: "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

This set a dilemma for the rest of us. To ignore Sir Waldron's exuberance would have seemed a slight to our leader, so in British fashion we compromised and followed Waldron about an octave flat.

Then as the answer came "The Red Flag" there is no question about it. The Socialists sing better than the Tories. At least, they did in 1945.

NOW A SOLO. 'THE JONES BOYS'

THE most distinguished rendering of "The Red Flag" I have ever heard was during the General Strike when Mr Lloyd George and the late Lord Birkenhead came to Lord Beaverbrook's flat at the top of the Sunday Express building.

That was, of course, just before Lord Beaverbrook's sixth declaration that he took no part in the affairs of his newspapers.

"F.E." had secured a copy of the words, and as L.G. was known to be reasonably musical it was suggested that he should lead the others while I played the accompaniment on the piano.

At first the effect was only startling. Then as our host really got going it was terrifying.

When Lord Beaverbrook sings it sounds like an affirmation of the Shorter Catechism, a rallying of the Empire and a gale warning.

Not content with the Moscow anthem, he gave a solo performance of an old song which, he claimed, was the whole story of New Brunswick in the days when he was a small boy there in his father's manse. Here it is:—

Oh the Jones boys!
They built a mill
On the side of a hill,
And they worked all night
And they worked all day,
But they couldn't make
That gosh darned sawmill pay!

After that Lord Birkenhead remembered an important appointment and left.

INSPIRED BY THE 'MARSEILLAISE'

THERE is, of course, nothing to equal "La Marseillaise" in the power to stir the pulses and inflame the spirit. It is a composition of sheer genius created in a moment of fierce exaltation. Even to our British ears it never fails to rouse the emotions. Then what must it mean to the French?

I never heard it played more beautifully than that year when the French President and his wife were received by both Houses of Parliament in the great gallery. As our guests walked, their entourage slowly walked up the aisle a hidden orchestra gave such meaning to the famous anthem that it was at once poignant and beautiful.

Let us hope that the President and his lady both had tears in their eyes, for then they may not have noticed that on one wall of the gallery was a gigantic painting of Waterloo and a companion painting on the other wall of Trafalgar.

OH, BE SWIFT, MY SOUL, TO ANSWER...

IT would not be right in this review of national musical expression to leave out the Americans even if it were possible to omit the Americans in anything these days.

Their "Battle Song of the Republic" to which the Northerners marched in the Civil War, is only second in greatness to "La Marseillaise." Few of us who were at the unveiling of President Roosevelt's statue in Grosvenor square will ever forget hearing those words sung in the vast quiet of that morning:—

He hath sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat:
He is sifting out the hearts
Of men before His Judgment seat:

Oh, be swift, my soul, to answer
Him; be jubilant, my feet!
Our God is marching on.

Shakespeare himself would have rejoiced in that phrase, "be jubilant, my feet!" That flame still burns in the spirit of America even if its tunes have changed.

Pleated Side-Pocket Skirt—Styled for Fashion and Convenience piece lengthwise, right side in, stitch one of the these along one side and up 1/4 of the distance of the opposite side. On other pocket piece, for left-hand side of skirt, put an 8" skirt zipper in the first seam to serve as a pocket opening.

Pockets to Side Seams

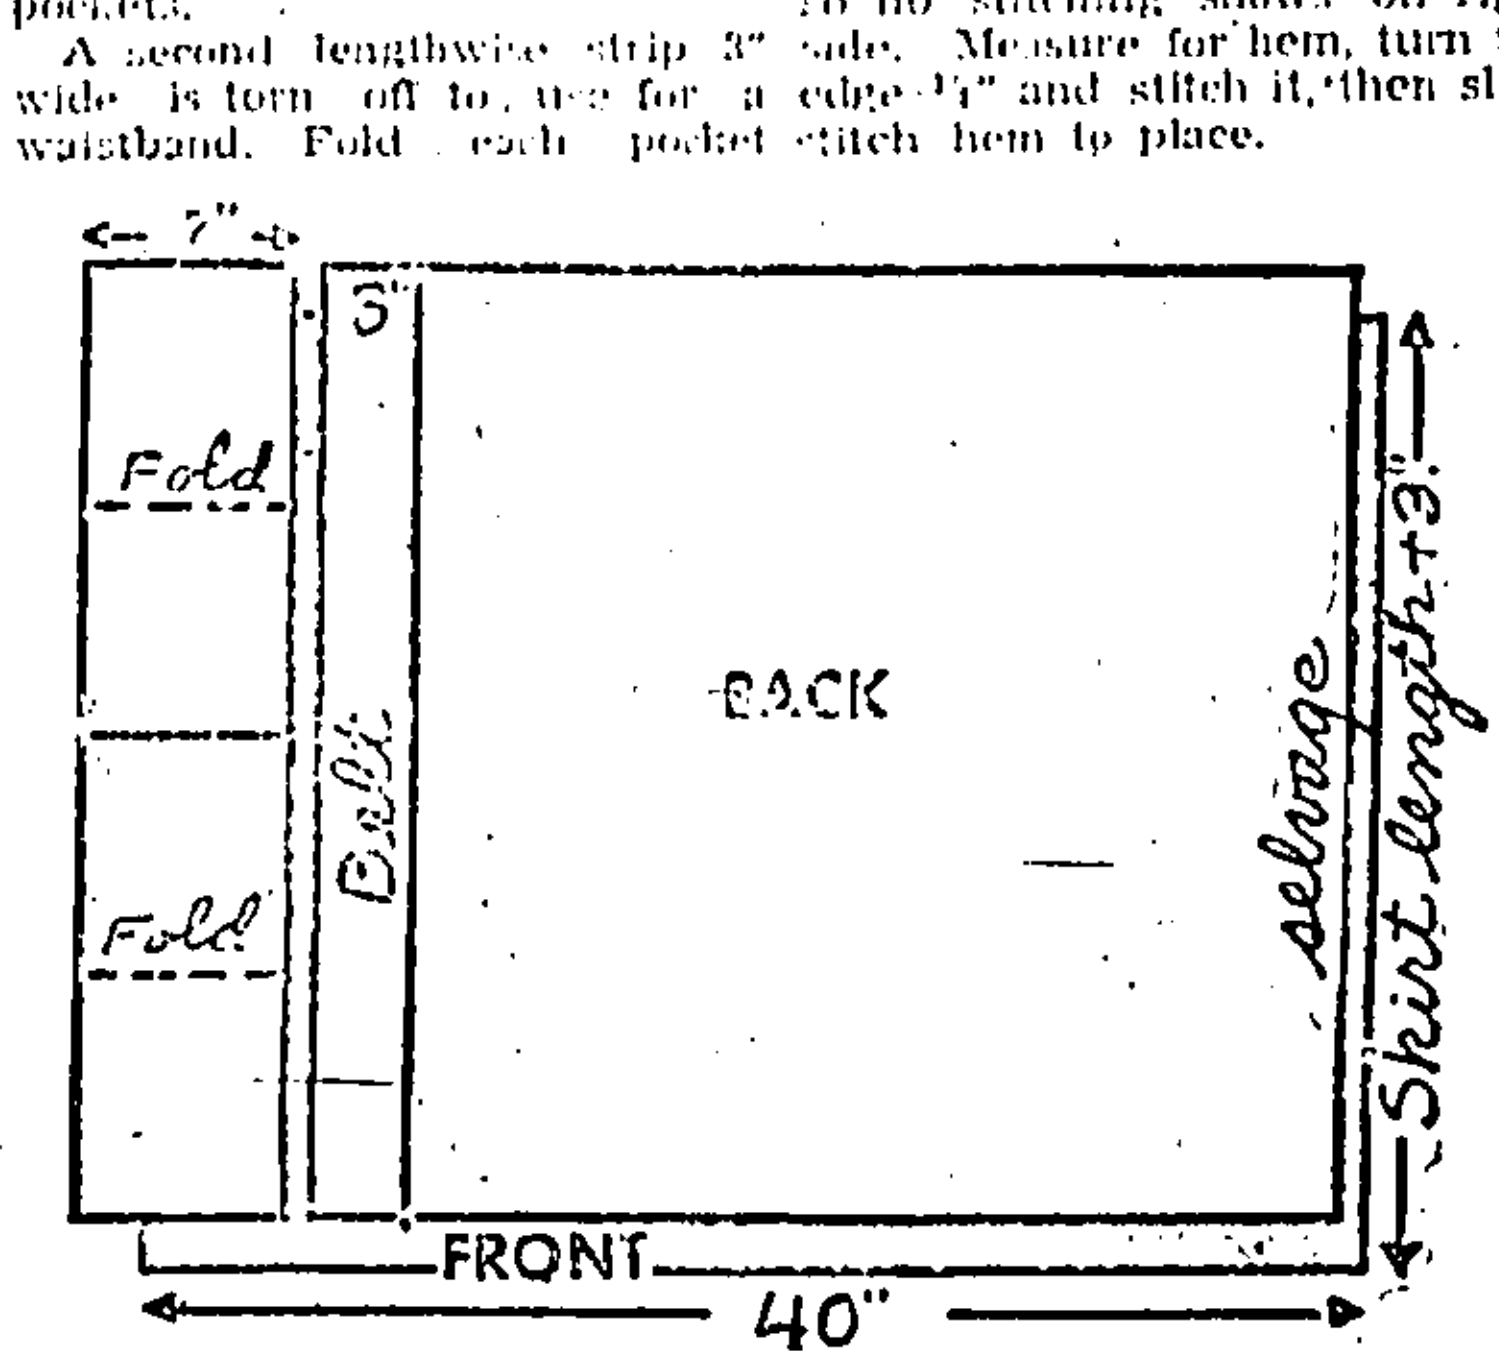

Pin these pockets to the side seams of the skirt, right sides together. (First clipping seam that joins skirt at top of short row of stitching), beginning at the top of the pocket and top of the skirt. Stitch down to the clipped seam line on both sides of the pocket.

Stitch Side Seams of Skirt from Pocket, stitching down to bottom edge. Press seams open. Cut the seam at the bottom of the pocket opening with several back stitches, exactly in the seam so pocket will not pull out.

Front and Centre Back

Notch centre front and centre back line of skirt at waistline. Fold belt in 4 and notch for centre front, centre back, and right side seam. Gather back fullness. Lay from fullness in pleats as illustrated shows. Make sure side seams of skirt come at half-way point in belt band.

Put the 3" band of fabric on as a belt, stitching it and then slip-stitching edge on inside of band so no stitching shows on right side. Measure for hem, turn top edge 1" and stitch it, then slip-stitch hem to place.

CLOTHES HINTS

Consider your slip when you make or buy a sheer dress. Be sure it comes down to the hem of the dress and hangs evenly all around. Plain slips look best under figured or fancy sheers. Dressy slips may be worn under plain sheers, and matching slips are very popular.

When you hang terry cloth articles outdoors to dry, hang them half over the line to avoid distorting the corners and to keep the ends clean. Shake the garments before hanging them on the line, and shake them again just before they are completely dry.

If you wash blouses in an automatic washer, pre-treat collars and cuffs with suds and a soft-bristled brush to make sure you banish heavy soil marks.

A Letter from Blinky Mole

—He Invited the Shadows to Visit Him—

By MAX TRELL

EVEN though it was such a cold winter's day, and such a biting wind was blowing Knarf and Hanid, the shadow-children with the turned-about names, were hoping to see somebody outside.

"Chirpie Sparrow ought to be out," said Knarf. "He stays here all winter."

"It must be too cold for Chirpie," said Hanid.

"Then where's Blinky Mole? Blinky has a good heavy winter coat, hasn't he? Why isn't he outside?"

"It must be blowing too hard for Blinky," said Hanid.

"Then where's Squire Squirrel? Where are the chipmunks? Where's Willy Toad? Where's everybody?"

Cold and Blowy

"It must be too cold and too blowy for all of them," was all

Blinky Mole sat reading.

Knarf and Hanid immediately dressed in their warmest clothes and hurried across the cold and windy garden until they reached the large pile of old apple tree. A large pile of snow almost covered the stump; but after pushing the snow away, they found what they were looking for—a small door with a sign tacked to it, reading: Blinky Mole, Residence.

They rang the bell. "Come in!" shouted several voices. Three seconds later Knarf and Hanid were in Blinky Mole's large living-room, taking off their hats and coats and muffers and rubbers.

The room was filled with Blinky's friends.

Willy Toad was there, sitting in a big chair with his legs crossed, smoking a pipe.

The Royal Family And The Festival

Britain will see a great deal of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, as well as the other adult members of the Royal Family, during Festival Year. Their Majesties have engagements which take them as far as Belfast in Northern Ireland, Glasgow in Scotland, and Cardiff in Wales. All the Royal Family will be at the Service of Dedication at St. Paul's Cathedral on May 3 and at the ceremony which will take place afterwards on the steps outside the Cathedral when the King, in a broadcast to the world, will declare the Festival open.

Later, the Queen will attend the Pageant at Hitehin, near her own birthplace, and the Festival at King's Lynn, not far from Sandringham. Princess Elizabeth will open the Exhibition of Industrial Power in Glasgow, go on to the Perth Arts Festival and attend the Norwich Festival.

Princess Margaret's special appearance will be to open the Festival Pleasure Gardens in Battersea Park, London on May 3. The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester will go to Bristol and Cambridge, among other towns, to open the proceedings while the Princess Royal will attend York, Leeds and Inverness Festivals. At Bournemouth, Oxford and Canterbury there will be a welcome for the Duchess of Kent, who will also attend St. David's Festival in Wales.

ME, MYSELF AND I

Trude Bernstein, 17, finds herself reflected from all angles in Chicago. Her self-portrait won top honours in the city's scholastic art awards contest and her work has been called an example of pre-primative, the new art trend in Chicago schools. Trude's painting and 1,700 other winners will go to Pittsburgh for the national finals.

Keep Slim And Feel Fit

Film Stars, such as pretty Jean Fontaine, must be constantly on guard against added pounds. They keep a slim silhouette by proper diet, and adequate exercise.

By HELEN FOLLETT

DO you know that pretty film stars to whom a beautiful silhouette is stock in trade, must keep to the exact normal weight, to a single pound? If you fancy that they can gorge themselves on the good things of the table, your guess is all wrong. Nor can they fail to take exercise unless they have an experienced masseuse who is willing and ready to pound off any little fat cells that may appear.

Health rules are followed to the letter. These lovelies are hard working. Life isn't just fun for them. They're often up at five o'clock in the morning, getting ready to beat it to the studio. So, they crawl in between the sheets early, get their beauty sleep.

On the Gain

Should it happen that the bathroom scales report that you are on the gain, don't fail to start on a sensible, hygienic reducing campaign. A check-up by your old family Doc is a good idea though. If you feel well and fit you can take off the excess pounds by eating—foods that are poor in fats and starches with enough protein—meat, fish, eggs—to maintain the structure of the body cells.

Fat meats are your enemies. Green vegetables are better for you than the starchy ones—white and sweet potatoes, baked beans, lima beans, tinned or fresh corn.

Foods Without Weight

That leaves you plenty of good chow. Foods that you can eat without gaining weight are: lean beef, hamburger, fish that is not oily, practically all kinds of fruit. Vegetables include asparagus, cauliflower, cabbage, carrots, cucumbers, brussels sprouts, tomatoes, spinach, onions, string beans.

Any exercise that calls for vigorous use of many muscles and speeds up the body's activities is beneficial. No exercise will bring returns unless it is done regularly. Have ten minutes set aside each day for stretching, torso twisting and bending.

On cold days a brisk walk is helpful in burning up some of the excess fat. Don't overdo. But remember, sensible reduction of weight will improve the vigour of the body.

Redhead Who's Not Afraid To Wear Pink

Susan Hayward is one redhead who isn't afraid to wear pink. Susan has just ordered two new playbills featuring "hibiscus" pink, and plans to wear them with brown accessories. Pink Champy is chosen for the strapless sun dress that has a detachable skirt, showing bra and shorts beneath. This is worn, with fringed brown linen hat and shoes. The other is a pink jersey, bathing suit, with shirred front and halter straps, that is piped down the sides, with brown. A waist-length cape of the pink jersey is lined with brown, designed to protect the shoulders from too much sunburn.

By OSWALD JACOBY

WHEN today's hand was played, West thought carefully before he chose his opening lead. His opponents were conservative players, and their willingness to bid no-trump made it fairly clear that they had the unbid suit (spades) well controlled. He "believed" the club and diamond bids, but decided that hearts might be the weak point since North had never rebid the suit and South had never supported it. Hence he began a defence that was to end with a most unexpected setting trick.

When West led the deuce of hearts dummy played low, and East won with the jack. East returned a low heart, and West's ten forced out dummy's king. South entered his hand with the ace of clubs to take the spade finesse, and dummy's queen of spades naturally won.

Now South found out the bad news when he led to the queen of clubs and discovered that the suit did not break. This was a bitter blow but he hopefully took the king of clubs and gave West his club trick. West naturally returned his remaining heart, knocking out dummy's ace.

DECLARER collected the last club, saving two diamonds and two spades in his own hand while East saved a spade, a heart, and two diamonds. Then South led the singleton diamond from the dummy. East properly put up the ace of diamonds at once and cashed the last heart. This trick squeezed poor South.

If South discarded the king of diamonds, the defenders would immediately take a diamond trick, so South was obliged to blank his lack of spades. Therefore, East led his ten of spades, which was covered by South's jack and West's king. Dummy could take the ace of spades, but then West made the setting trick with his six of spades.

TODAY'S QUESTION: With both sides vulnerable, you deal yourself the following cards: Spades Q-7-5-3-2, Hearts A-K-Q, Diamonds 4-3, Clubs 2. What do you do?

COLONY ATHLETES WARM UP FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIPS ON MAY 19 AND 20 By "RECORDER"

Nearly all the known leading athletes of the Colony participated in a final competitive warm-up at Caroline Hill Stadium yesterday that had been primarily arranged to give them some final practice and to give all intending competitors an idea of the standard required to reach the finals of the Colony Championships on May 19 and 20.

The meet also served as an opportunity for the debut locally of the Milocarian Athletic Club, which groups together the athletics enthusiasts among the officers of the three services. The Milocarians put up a respectable show with their small team and received from the South China Athletic Association, the hosts, a pennant to commemorate the first meeting between the two Clubs.

Interest yesterday was centred in the duels between Alapini, of the Royal Air Force, and Jackson Lee of La Salle College, the Inter-School Champion, in the 100 and 200 Metres and in the return meeting between Lo Wing-chuen and Tony Braga in the 400 Metres. The latter two had run first and second in the Inter-School Sports.

Alapini, who hails from Nigeria, forced Jackson Lee to his fastest 100 Metres—11.1 seconds—and shared honours with him by overtaking him almost on the tape in what was a blanket finish in the 200 metres.

Alapini was timed in 23.1 seconds in this longer race after a three-cornered duel with Wong Man-wah of South China, who was in the lead with 60 metres to go and must have turned in a 23.4 or 23.5 second performance.

Jackson Lee was second in 23.1 or 23.2. He had won the Inter-School title in 23.1 seconds last Thursday.

The 400 Metres was also a three-cornered light all the way. Lambo of Milocarians finishing in about 54.6 seconds behind Lo Wing-chuen, timed in 54.1 seconds and Braga, overtaken about two yards from the tape, who must have done 54.3 or 54.4 seconds.

Competing in the shot put and discus throw was Ng Yin-fok, the South China captain, who last year did 52.4 seconds for the 400 metres and 22.8 seconds for the 200 metres. He is definitely competing in the Championships in the longer race and, though not in training, should be good for about 53.5 seconds. He did not run yesterday.

Ng should be able to pull Lo and Braga under 54 seconds and believes that Braga, if he is in top condition, is likely to come down to 53.5 seconds. The three should make the Colony 400 Metres the fastest we have ever seen here.

A high standard was reached yesterday, the best marks being 11-foot 1 1/4-inch vault by Yee Tit-kwan, which will probably be accepted as the Colony record, and a 4-foot 10 1/2-inch high jump by Dai-ywater.

RECORDS PROBLEM

One of the problems facing the Hongkong Amateur Track and Field Association is that of records and the policy will, I understand, be to accept performances in the past if these can be attested to.

It is known, for example, that W. S. Gegg of University ran the 100 metres in 10.8 seconds in 1940 and Opl. Walter Land of the Royal Engineers jumped 6 feet about the same year, but the Records Committee will have to be satisfied that Gegg's time was accomplished without wind aid and that Land's jump was properly measured, taking into account any sag of the bar.

Though there has been a 23-foot performance in the long jump in the Colony Championships in 1940, the level of the sand in the pit is remembered by one witness at least as having been below that of the take-off board and the mark is unlikely to be accepted.

It is not unlikely that the Records Committee will have to start the records list from performances since the Hongkong Track and Field Association came into being, or from the first Annual Quadrangular Meet between South China Athletic Association, Army, Royal Navy and Royal Air Force.

The problem could be solved by starting the records list from scratch and acknowledging separately the outstanding previous marks. A long jump of 23 feet at Caroline Hill into a pit about two inches below the level of the take-off board would be worth about 22 feet 10 inches and is still worth listing as an outstanding performance as no one within memory in this Colony has come anywhere near it other than for Fagline and Japanese Olympic athletes who passed through here on their way to the Amsterdam and Berlin Olympics.

Yesterday's performances suggested that the Colony could take on Manila and Singapore without being outclassed and could, perhaps, even beat the two cities in a triangular match. Hongkong's athletes could certainly hold their own in all the runs and could score in the field events. We are weaker in the hurdles and jumps.

GIRLS AGAIN

There was one event yesterday for the girls—a 100 Metres run—and this attracted enough entries for three heats, all won by the King George V School, which arranged the event with its supporters.

ENTRIES CLOSE TOMORROW

Entries for the Colony Track and Field Championships to be held at Caroline Hill on Saturday and Sunday, May 19 and 20, close tomorrow. These should be addressed to the Joint Hon. Secretary, Mr. F. J. Tingay, King George V School.

Mr. Tingay will accept entries by telephone (27877) from intending competitors in Army units stationed in New Territories up to 3 p.m. on Tuesday. Any such calls to Mr. Tingay should be made at 11 a.m., 1 p.m. or 3 p.m. on Tuesday.

Tennis League Season Opens This Afternoon By "ARGONAUT"

The 1951 Colony Tennis League season begins this afternoon with a programme of five Men's "B" Division and two Ladies' "B" Division matches. The Men's "B" Division, which will be a one-round affair, sees the clash between the CRC "1" and the CCC "1". The outcome of this match will have an important bearing on the Tai Hang club's bid to regain the championship from South China, their last year's conquerors.

With Choy Tin-wah, Lieu Kin-hong, Lu Tak-cheuk and Molan Chan as their nucleus, the Chinese Recreation Club are strongly favoured to win this afternoon's game, though not without the possibility of an upset.

K. C. Dao and V. T. Wang, and for that matter George Choa, are all eligible under the league rules to play in this match, but it is doubtful if such obviously "A" players will be utilised by the CRC. It is likely that the remaining players will come from Morsland Ma, Chung Yue-to, Pang O-lam, D. C. Luk or Au Kam-moon.

The Valley Club will field a stronger team than they did last year and with the advantage of playing on their home court are expected to provide stern resistance to the favourites.

The Ladies' "B" League, which attracted five entries this year as compared to seven last year, will be played in two rounds.

United Services Recreation Club and Hongkong University are the missing teams. Ladies' Recreation Club, the champions of last season, will be the guests of Recoelo "Blues" and will field a number of new players in this match. Among them are Mrs. P. Calderara, Mrs. W. M. Chalmers, Mrs. N.M.W. Harris and Mrs. K. B. Baker.

The Recoelo "Blues" will have most of their last year's players doing service for them again and although LRC's new talent has not been seen in action it is expected that their hard hitting will carry them through.

More interesting ladies' tennis should be provided at the Kowloon Cricket Club where the Cox's Road ladies are at home to the Craigengower Cricket Club. The Valley Club have been reinforced by the re-inclusion this year of their two stalwarts, Mrs. Violet Fowler and Miss Rose Rummah, and are fielding this season practically the same team which won them the title in 1949.

Kowloon Cricket Club will also have a strong team out, including in their line-up Miss L. Coxall, Mrs. J. Lawes, Mrs. E. Horsman, Mrs. S. Groundwater and possibly Mrs. M. Pepperell, Mrs. E. Tebbutt, Mrs. Hancock or Miss Fisher. A close game should be seen with the odds in favour of Craigengower.

Fanny Koen May Run At Helsinki

The Hague, Apr. 29. Mrs. Fanny Blackers-Koen, Dutch winner of four gold medals at the London Olympics, intends to compete in the 1952 Games in Helsinki if her performances this season prove satisfactory.

A definite decision will not be made until the end of the season. Mrs. Blackers-Koen is not likely to accept invitations to run in Vienna on Whit Sunday and in Liverpool in May, her husband and coach, Jan Blackers-Koen, stated, as bad weather had prevented her from training earlier.

BRITISH RECORD Roger Bannister set a new British record of 2 minutes 55.8 seconds for the Three-quarter Mile run on April 17 at Motspur Park, a fifth of a second off the world record. The former British record holder for the 1,250 Yards was Sydney Wadsworth with 2 minutes 58.8 seconds.

Double Victory For Golds In The All-Star Exhibition Matches By "GRANDSTAND"

The curtain was lowered on the official softball season yesterday with two all-star games in which the Gold sections scored a double victory over the Blues before a crowd of diehard fans who braved the scorching sun.

Frankie Barros' senior nine shaded the opposition 5-3 in a full nine-inning game while Y. S. Liang's minor loopers triumphed over Rene Sequeira's selection 4-0.

Both of the leaders in the Inter-Hong series suffered losses over the weekend when Gibbs succumbed to a 9-8 noscout by Lowe Bingham's after thirteen quelling innings, while China Light toppled Jardines by the identical score of 9-8.

A deadlock for the championship is now certain as five teams are now tied for the top slot, each with three losses against them, and one more game to go.

The season was wound up in a fitting manner as Junior League umpires handled the Senior game while the Seniors called the minor league tussle, and particular mention must be made of Frank Ewins who handled the plate assignment for both games without relaxation. EHL Silva, too, deserves a bouquet for officiating in Saturday's Inter-Hong 13-inning game without a murmur of protest.

SENIOR GAME The Senior Championship and batting title having been won by the Blue section of the league, the Golds redeemed themselves when they outplayed the all-star Blues for a 5-3 verdict.

Vic Pedruco handled the pitching assignment for the winners, taking over the task after Jock Brown had opened the initial chapter, while Chapple Remedios of the Braves toiled for seven frames before the chore was passed on the pitcher Tony Kwok, but unfortunately Tony couldn't find the plate with sufficient frequency and was derelicted after he walked three of the five batters to face him.

Osmond and Ma fled out, followed by Junior Remedios' grounder for a fruitless Blue first-inning attempt while the Golds drew first blood in their half when rookie Steven Xavier in the lead-off spot for the Golds teed off for a rousing single to centre, which was mishandled to enable Xavier to make four bases on the hit.

The Blues fought back into the lead in the next semester when Rabbit Leung and Xavier lost two easy pop flies in the sun. Y. S. Liang forced Tsao at home but Carlos Yvanovich came through with a timely two-bagger to nudge two runs over the plate.

Fans were treated to an exhibition of light fielding as neither side could score in the next frame. In the fourth stanza Golds slanted the lead on two bunched hits by Leung and Rene Sequeira and it was then anyone's ballgame. The fifth, sixth and seventh rounds passed in quick order but in the eighth the fire-works started when Frank Correa and Jock Brown worked relief hurler Tony Kwok for a pair of passes to first base. Steven Xavier dropped a neat bunt and the snacks were loaded.

A wild pitch saw the equaliser sliding over the plate while a off with Malcolm Clemon on the slob, finished with Bob Remedios taking over the hurling chore.

Jardines notched up three runs in the second frame to take a commanding lead, but in the third the China Lighters staged a six run uprising to reverse the advantage.

The final games of the series will be played this week, Gholi meeting Gibbs this afternoon while Jardines will tangle with Gibbs on Wednesday. China Light's outstanding game against Secony will also take place on Wednesday.

MVP balloting will close tomorrow at 5 p.m., while entries to the coming summer loop should be in the hands of Mr. R. R. Sequeira, 25 Cameron Road, Kowloon, by this evening.

subsequent double-strike found the Golds ahead 3-0. Chapple Remedios was recalled and managed to stamp out the fire when Chan and Sequeira were retired easily.

The Blues had a chance to pull the game out of the fire in their final turn with the willow, but smart fielding enabled the Golds to protect their lead till the end.

Winning pitcher Vic Pedruco gave up three hits while hurler Chapple Remedios, who should have been credited with a win, yielded four blows.

In the junior all-star tilt, the Golds section outclassed the Blues when they shutout their rivals 4-0. Tony Rey on the mound for the winners pitched steady ball to deliver Hong Kong to register a scoreless triumph, while Joey Graça on the rubber for the losers seemed to have lost a little of his former effectiveness and gave up too many damaging hits.

INTER-HONG Inter-Hong fortunes were the talk of the weekend, as both Jardines and Gibbs, who were favoured to play off for the title, found themselves joining company with a trio of other teams when both outfits dropped close decisions.

In the case of Gibbs, the unwise step of relieving hurler Alf Malt in the early stages of the game, when they had set up a decent lead, proved to be their undoing for with strong-armed Gerry Roza-Pereira and Lionel Sequeira chucking the horseshoe everywhere but the strike-zone, the artful outfit from Lowe Bingham's soon levelled the count when the seventh frame was completed.

Neither side could break the tie and when Gibbs scored a run, the Auditors counted another.

In the 13th when Rene Barreto for Lowe Bingham's was obviously tiring, Alf Garcia smacked out a liner over second base which outfielder Young muffed, and to make things worse the pellet evaded him and Garcia walked up the tie-breaker.

In the bottom of the 13th frame, the first two batters were easy outs and when the third batter grounded to third base, the ballgame was as good as over, but then one of those things happened. Roza-Pereira who was jet-propelling him to first base, suddenly let up and lobbed a slow peg across for the final out, but as often happens, the slow ones are the trickiest, and Garcia muffed the catch.

The odds were still on Gibbs to notch up another victory when determined Roberto Nunes singled to drive in the tying run. Another unexpected safe hit found Nunes crossing the plate with the winning run to make the game out of the fire at the eleventh hour.

Jardines hopes, which soared after Gibbs suffered a setback, were given a rude shock when China Light dumped them with a 9-8 shading to throw the flag chase wide open. Playing careless ball, Jardines had two scoring chances in the opening chapter when Alvaro Xavier was called trying to stretch a double into three bases. Mano Pereira suffered a similar fate when he attempted an extra base after a sacrifice. Hurler Kelly Silva-Neto for Ewos lost some of the magic touch when he walked eight Electricians during the game, while China Light, who started

SPURS MAKE SURE OF THE FOOTBALL LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

London, Apr. 28.

Tottenham Hotspur, with a single goal victory over Sheffield Wednesday, made sure today of winning the Football League Championship.

Thus they have equalled the achievements of Everton (1931 and 1932), and Liverpool (1905 and 1906) by carrying off the Second Division title and the League Championship in successive seasons.

This match was the biggest draw of the day, outside the Cup Final, and a crowd of 46,648 saw Spurs triumph.

This match was the biggest draw of the day, outside the Cup Final, and a crowd of 46,648 saw Spurs triumph.

Tottenham's winning goal came in the first half through Len Duquemin. Only luck and the goal-keeping by Metcalf in the second half saved Sheffield Wednesday from a heavier defeat, for the Spurs' forwards found their best form and hammered in shot after shot.

Even the Tottenham right-back, Alf Ramsey, second with a long series of Tottenham's success must have been a bitter disappointment to Wednesday and also to Manchester United. The Sheffield club are struggling to avoid relegation and Manchester United, who were Spurs only challengers, made a splendid bid for honours with a 0-0 defeat of Huddersfield.

Rotherham United, runners up in the Third Division Northern in 1947 have at last achieved their ambition of reaching League II status. Their win at Lincoln today assured them of promotion.

Nottingham Forest, now seem virtually certain of promotion from the Third Division South. While they were winning comfortably against Southend, their closest rivals, Norwich City, virtually dropped out of the hunt by losing to their neighbours Ipswich. This was the first home defeat of the season for Norwich, who now stand three points behind Notts Forest with only two games to play.

RELEGATION SETTLED. One relegation issue was settled today. By taking a point from Coventry, Luton kept their place in the Second Division at the expense of Chesterfield, whose achievement in drawing at Southampton does not prevent them from going down with Grimsby.

The question of which clubs will be relegated from the First Division still remains to be settled, and the goal-average may be called upon to decide between Everton, Chelsea and Sheffield Wednesday.

Today, both Chelsea and Everton gained unexpected away wins, and Sheffield Wednesday's defeat sends them once again to the bottom place. A great deal hinges on the result of Everton's visit to Wednesday next week. Chelsea's opponents are Bolton Wanderers.

Fighting for first Division places are Manchester City and Cardiff, both vying for second place behind Preston North End in Division II.

CITY'S CHANCES. Manchester City improved their chances with a goalless draw on the Sheffield United ground while Cardiff were losing at Leeds, and the Manchester club now lead Cardiff by one point and have a game in hand.

Two clubs are already sure of having to seek re-election to the Southern section. They are Watford and Crystal Palace, who drew today. This is the second time in only three seasons that the Palace have finished in the last place.

There was a remarkable finish to the Scottish season. Apart from Falkirk, who were certain of relegation, five other clubs stood in danger in Division "A".

Aldershot ended their worries in a sensational fashion by trouncing Falkirk by 11 goals to one, and Merton beat the Scottish Cup finalists, Motherwell by five goals to nil. The only club of the quarter who didn't win were Clyde, and they must accompany Falkirk to the "B" Division.

Festival Rugby Union Match

London, Apr. 29.

The first representative Rugby Union match in connection with the Festival of Britain has been arranged for Rectory Field, Blackheath's ground, on Saturday, September 15.

The match will be England and Scotland against Wales and Ireland, and has been organised by Mr. D. J. Eason, town clerk of Greenwich, who formerly played for London Welsh and North—Reuter.

Promoted in their places are Queen of the South and Stirling Albion.—Reuter.

Harlem Globetrotters Want To Tour Countries Behind The Iron Curtain

The famous Harlem Globetrotters basketball team has asked the Russian government for permission to tour behind the Iron Curtain.

The idea came from Bill Vecek, former president of the Cleveland (Ohio) Baseball Club, who is helping to promote the Globetrotters' European tour which opens on May 14 in London.

Vecek wants the Trotters to play basketball not only in Moscow but elsewhere in Russia, Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

He is also conferring with officials at the Yugoslav Embassy about having the Negro team perform before Uncle Joe Stalin's arch enemy, Marshal Tito.

"We were told last year in Europe," Vecek said, "that the basketball teams in Western Europe were behind the Iron Curtain. We want to play the best Europe has to offer."

"The State Department thought it was a good idea," said the happy Mr. Vecek.

"SPLENDID TREATMENT" He went to the Russian, Czech and Yugoslav embassies after that and received what he called "splendid treatment."

"They all seemed to be enthused with the idea," he said. This does not mean that it is certain the foreign offices back in Moscow, Prague, Bucharest and Belgrade are going to approve the idea. But at least it's a good start, thinks Vecek.

The tour behind the Iron Curtain would be in addition to the 100-plus game tour co-promoted by Abe Saperstein and Vecek have set up to take the Trotters through South America, Europe and North Africa.

"Our top crowd last year was 17,500 in Genoa, Italy," Vecek said. "They were really interested in basketball over there and we hope they will be more interested this year."

Last year the 77-game tour in Europe and North Africa drew 500,000 fans. The Trotters and their circus-style basketball won 76 games against one loss.

Vecek contends they have not lost the touch this year.

STRONG AUSTRALIAN SWIMMING TEAM LIKELY AT HELSINKI

Melbourne.

Australia's swimming team for the 1952 Helsinki Olympic Games is likely to be the strongest ever to represent this country.

Besides the world record holder, John Marshall, and Garrick Agnew, the recent Australian championships here have shown that a number of swimmers are in the world class.

Foremost is 15-year-old Barry Darke. Experts predict that in 12 months' time Darke will improve on his recent times.

Australia's No. 1 sprint swimmer, Frank O'Neill, who finished behind France's Alex Jany at the championships, already has a serious rival in 15-year-old Rex Aubrey.

Aubrey has clocked 62 secs. for the 110 yards and it is expected that during the coming season he will join the select band of Australian swimmers who have swum the distance in under a minute.

In the breaststroke division Australia has two good Olympic prospects in Ron Sharpe and Dave Hawkins, both British Empire champions.

Judy Joy, Davies won this year's Bennett Award for women. She has been swimming for 14 seasons, but is still improving her times.

DUTCH OUTSWUM Two other women swimmers, Margaret Pascall, who finished ahead of Holland's Geertje Galliard, and Denise Norton, who beat the European ace, Inna Schumacher, also appear to have winning chances at Helsinki.

If an Australian team were to be selected for the 1952 Games it would be like this: John Marshall, Judy Davies, Marjorie McQuade, Ron Faulds and John Uren (Victoria); Barry Darke, Barry Kella-way, Frank O'Neill, Joe McCann, Ron Sharpe, Dave Hawkins and Rex Aubrey (New South Wales); Garry Agnew and Margaret Pascall (Western Australia); and Denise Norton (South Australia).—Reuter.

Hassan Hassanein Beats Von Nida In Cairo Match

Cairo, Apr. 29. Norman Von Nida, Australian Golf Champion, was beaten by one hole today in a brilliant 36 holes final of the Egyptian match play tournament here.

His conqueror was Hassan Hassanein, the Egyptian Open Champion, who like Von Nida is to play in Britain during the summer.

Both played almost flawless golf on the Gezira Sporting Club course.

They were all square at the end of the first round. Von Nida, three down at one stage, reduced his arrears to one hole at the 17th.

A putt, which if successful would have given him an eagle three at the 18th to square the match, rimmed the cup and just stayed out.—Reuter.

Chelsea Beat Copenhagen

Copenhagen, Apr. 29. Chelsea, who are involved in a desperate relegation struggle in the English First Division, beat a combined Copenhagen side 2-1 here this afternoon.

The London Club led 1-0 at half-time.—Reuter.

Britain is the only foreign country which has investments in India's cotton textile industry, Industry Minister H.K. Mahabadi said.
British investments total $20,000,000.
Mills in which the British hold financial interests produced 15.2 per cent of India's total yarn in 1949, Mr. Mahabadi said, and 8.2 per cent of the cloth production.
Their output totalled 181,000,000 pounds of yarn and 302,000,000 pounds of cloth.—Associated Press.

Share Levels Highest In 20 Years

New York, Apr. 28.
President Truman's remark that the nation will not reach the peak of inflation until this autumn shot the stock market up to the best level of 20 years this week.
However, prior to the release of the President's message to Congress on Thursday, the market as a whole was displaying a considerable amount of strength.
Industrials dominated dealings throughout the week. A sharp advance in this group as measured by the averages moved that component to its best level since June 8, 1930. Rails, however, were still well under their highs.
Gains in the oil section were extremely wide. Improvement of more than 2 points each was scored by a number of issues in this group.
Chemical stocks skyrocketed on Friday. Railroad equities were quiet throughout the week. However, some carriers showed gains of almost 2 points.—United Press.

Industrial Output In US At New Highs

New York, Apr. 29. Industrial production climbed to record levels last week in the face of new Government regulations that businessmen and industrialists viewed with a slightly jaundiced eye.

Crude oil production of 6,060,800 barrels was a record high.

Freight carloadings were the highest since Nov. 18 last. The 801,520 cars loaded reflected the rapid rate at which goods were moving.

The nation's steel mills were operating at 103.3 per cent of rated capacity.

Engineering awards aggregated $284,691,000, better than the previous week's $220,597,000.

Corporate earnings for the first quarter continued to make good reading. But higher taxes and increased production costs were being felt more.

Several larger corporations reported smaller profits on larger sales. Many industrialists forecast lesser earnings in the coming quarters.

President Harry Truman's 18-member Wage Stabilisation Board did not make business and industry any happier. The Board has the power to recommend settlement of a wide variety of labour-management disputes affecting the defence programme. Management wants the Board restricted to consideration of strictly economic disputes such as those over pay.

SOME ANXIETY
Government wage controls appeared due for an overhauling now that the Wage Board has been established. Industry is a little anxious over the results.

During the week Economic Stabiliser Eric Johnston approved a six cents an hour increase for 1,000,000 railroad workers even though it went beyond the Government's 10 per cent ceiling on pay raises. Mr. Johnston said special consideration had been given the rail workers because under the Railway Labour Act it takes longer for them to win new contract objectives. Department store sales over the nation just crept above a year ago and in some specific sections declined.

The decline in sales in cities where celebrations were held for General Douglas MacArthur was attributed in part to interest in the celebration. The Government reported the general level of farm prices dropped about two-thirds of one per cent during the month ended April 15.

Wholesale food prices, however, turned upward for the first time in seven weeks. Retail food prices for the most part were reported at ceiling levels.

Textile Market Caution

New York, Apr. 28.

In the Worth Street cotton grey goods market all hands adopted a neutral attitude, awaiting issuance of the long-awaited new pricing regulations by the Office of Price Stabilisation.

The Southern mill workers' strike is now in its fifth week.

It is hoped that the new pricing order will break the deadlock which has gripped trading over since the original price freeze of Jan. 28. A roll-back on print cloth fabrics was expected by a number of traders.—United Press.

ACTIVITY IN METAL MARKETS

New York, Apr. 29.

The volume of new Government orders controlling metals declined a little this week. But activity in the markets continued brisk as ever, with demand intense and prices steady.

Priority metals like copper, lead and zinc are not covered by the General Manufacturers' Price Ceiling Regulation issued on May 28. Also excluded are all metal alloys, secondary metals and scrap, ores, metal powders and rolled, drawn or extruded metals and alloys which have not been further fabricated.

The order does affect about 7,000 manufacturing firms which produce thousands of different products including goods made from metal. These companies are to base their new ceilings on the highest prices charged in the period between April 1 and June 24, 1950, or they may choose instead any one of the three preceding calendar quarters as a base period.

The National Production Authority eased its inventory limits on columbium and tantalum. Maximum stocks now are 45 days' supplies instead of the previous 30 days.

The NPA also relaxed its restrictions on cadmium to allow use of the anti-corrosion metal for certain aircraft and automotive parts in which no suitable substitutes have been found.

Manly Fleischmann, NPA chief, hopes to issue the first orders in the coming week actually instituting the new Controlled Materials Plan for allocating steel, copper and aluminum. The CNP will undertake to portion out these three metals to military and defence supporting users starting on July 1.

Mr. Fleischmann told a news conference the NPA hopes that complete rationing of the metals to all users can be avoided, barring all-out war. Climbing aluminum and steel production by the end of the year will help, he said, but the copper situation is more acute because no significant new production is in sight. He indicated that full allocation of copper might be needed by the end of 1951 if the consumers' scramble for it gets too wild.

LEAD CONTROLS?

Lead producers have completed their allocations for delivery in May and the tonnages are reported to be considerably below what their customers wanted. Defence order priority business was well over anticipations.

Some estimate it ran 30 to 40 per cent of the domestic supply, compared with the 20 per cent self-aid required by the NPA for May lead.

This situation may bring on stricter controls for lead. Some authorities believe the metal may even be put under the Controlled Materials Plan.

No let-up was seen in the urgent demand for zinc. Prices in the foreign market ranged upward from 29 cents a pound, against the quotation here of 17 1/2 cents.

The nation's two largest steel companies told news conferences this week they are getting along all right without manganese from Russia, once the U.S. main source of the essential steel-hardening material.—Associated Press.

Cotton Price Falters In New York

New York, Apr. 28.

Cotton futures prices faltered today after rising sharply in the previous session. After a steady opening in reduced dealings, the market immediately ran into profit-taking with the volume expanding. Nearby May held at the ceiling level of 45.39 cents a pound.

At the close, the market ruled unchanged to 17 points lower. The New Orleans cotton market closed unchanged to 18 points lower. Traders focused their attention on developments on the Korean battlefield.

Today is the last Saturday trading session for the New York Cotton Exchange until Sept. 8. Starting next week and continuing until Oct. 1, the market will defer its daily opening until 10.30 a.m. because of daylight saving time.

Materials Shortage Critical But Won't Kill Defence Plans

Gloomy Forecasts Refuted

(OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

London, Apr. 29.

Any discussion of the raw materials crisis, which this week provided an excuse for the resignation of three members of the Government, is in danger of becoming bogged down in political controversy. The difficulty is, of course, in deciding where the economic argument ends and political bias begins.

What one can answer on purely economic grounds, however, is the argument advanced by Mr Aneurin Bevan that the defence programme is "already dead" because we cannot hope to get raw materials needed to carry it out, and also Mr Harold Wilson's gloomy forecast that "today British industry stands disorganised and threatened by paralysis" because of raw material shortages.

Mr George Strauss, Minister of Supply, attempted to reply to these arguments this week-end. He said nothing had changed since the defence programme was first announced by the Prime Minister three months ago.

This is perfectly true but it is not a very convincing argument. If nothing has happened in the last three months to make the situation worse, it is equally true that nothing has happened to make it any better.

We are still without an assurance of reasonable supplies of raw materials to carry out the defence programme, maintain our exports and provide for the production of the most essential civilian requirements.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the hope that Mr Strauss placed in the outcome of the Washington commodity talks seemed a little tattered round the edges.

But if these talks have not yet produced the results that were expected of them, it is hardly the reason to talk about the defence programme being "already dead." Nor is it evidence to support the charge that British industry "stands disorganised."

The Washington commodity talks have made lamentably slow progress. They have, to use "The Economist's" words, "been in a series of statistical exercises all of which may be expected to show that there is a critical shortage of materials."

What seems to be lacking is a will to co-operate, and blame for this lies equally on both sides of the Atlantic. Tin and rubber—two of the principal Sterling Area commodities—are not within the scope of the present series of talks but, international conferences on both have recently been held. Both failed—not because there was any disagreement on the need to regulate supplies of these commodities but because the differences between producers and consumers on long-term price guarantees could not be reconciled.

BIG FACTOR
The difference between the "shortage" of tin and rubber and the shortage of other essential defence materials is that the former are almost entirely the result of American stockpiling. It may be that the effect of stockpiling on these and other commodities has been exaggerated for political reasons but this is a factor which cannot be left out of account in any discussion of raw material shortages.

But despite all the publicity which has been given to this question of raw material shortages the fact remains that the British defence programme is far from being dead. Import figures for raw materials during the first quarter of this year have many encouraging features. We actually increased our imports of such vital defence materials as copper, zinc, nickel, chromium, rubber, softwood, crude petroleum and hard fibres over the corresponding period of last year.

But imports of other essential commodities—lead, tungsten ores, tin concentrates, molybdenum ores, manganese ores and cobalt—fell sharply. This is certainly not a satisfactory situation and it argues for the need of international action, but it does not paint a picture as black as Messrs Bevan and Wilson have led many people to believe.

One commodity shortage which does threaten to disorganise industry is that of sulphur, and Mr Wilson was right to call special attention to it shortly before his resignation. But this week it was announced that America has allocated Britain enough sulphur for the first six months of this year to avert the "unparalleled disaster" envisaged by Mr Wilson.

The danger might be permanently avoided if plans to economise in the use of sulphur and to develop the substitution of other materials are carried out vigorously and without delay.

These arguments are not an attempt to gloss over what is really a most critical situation facing Britain at the outset of the tremendous defence effort. A great deal still depends on the degree of international co-

Machine-Tool Output Up

New York, Apr. 29.

The output of machine-tools in the United States has increased by about 50 per cent since the outbreak of the war in Korea, according to a survey by the National Industrial Conference Board.

News of the increase in machine-tool output was one of the main factors limiting increased production of defence equipment, according to the

A Royal Prerogative Usurped

Intervention By Iranian Senate
Teheran, Apr. 29.

The Senate backed up the Lower House today in demanding that a reluctant Shah designate firebrand Mohammed Mossadegh of the oil nationalisation bloc be appointed Premier.

Young Shah Mohammed Reza, Pahlavi, though incensed at Parliament's effort to force his hand on a matter of Royal prerogative, called the anti-British, anti-American, anti-Russian Mossadegh to the Palace for a conference. Palace sources said the Shah will bow to the popular will and Mossadegh, a millionaire, is Iran's man-of-the-hour.

The right of designating a Premier to succeed the resigned diplomat, Husein Ala, is the Shah's alone. But Parliament, in a fever of nationalistic excitement whipped up by assassinations, strikes, violence, a munitions depot explosion and Communist threats growing out of the oil issue, took the bit in its teeth.

SECRET BALLOT

The Senators in a secret ballot approved Mossadegh by the reported score of 29 of the 49 in attendance. The Senate then proceeded to final legislative action on immediate government ownership of the $1,500,000,000 British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. Iran's only developed oil enterprise, The Majlis, or Lower House, voted unanimously last night for immediate nationalisation.

Previously it had voted 79 to 12 for the designation as Premier of Mossadegh, leader of the small national bloc which has sown a whirlwind of warning of bloodshed unless oil nationalisation goes through promptly.

If named Premier Mossadegh would have only seven seats for his national bloc out of 136 in the Majlis. The murder early in March of "strong man" Premier General Ali Razmara, who bitterly opposed nationalisation, has produced a terror in the hearts of the deputies, however. The national bloc, always more powerful than its actual numbers, has swept all before it.

Premier Ala resigned on Friday because he refused to take responsibility for carrying out an oil nationalisation act which he believed was hastily devised.—Associated Press.

Answer To A Pilot's Prayer

Taking ditches and stone-heaps in its stride, the tank-track undercarriage of this Piper Cub plane is claimed to be the answer to the pilots' prayers. Designed by Count Giovanni Bonmartini of Italy, the invention was commissioned by the Est Company of Switzerland. The track can be adapted to any size of plane and can be fitted to retractable undercarriages.—AP Picture.

Taking No Chances

Manila, Apr. 30.

The Philippine Army stationed three Battalion Combat Teams around Manila today as a precaution against possible Communist Huk disturbances on May Day.

Union parades and meetings, traditionally held here on May 1, as in Europe, have been eliminated in Manila this year by mutual agreement in order to forestall any Red demonstration in the capital.

National Defence sources said its field reports failed to mention any large concentrations of Huk in the Manila vicinity within the past few days. But in Pampanga Province, north of the City, Army patrols were increased as a result of a report that Huk in the Zambales Mountains Province made a foray into the central plains. A delayed report from Isabela Province in northeastern Luzon said 10 Huk were killed in three encounters on Saturday between dissidents and patrols of the 11th Battalion Combat Team. The largest battle took place near the provincial capital of Isabela City, when six members of a band of 60 Huk were slain.—Associated Press.

All To Go Into Uniforms

For strengthening the defence of the province and preventing sabotage, the Military Defence Council in Kwangtung will call a public meeting on May 15. The Council will discuss the present harassing situation with the public, says a Chinese press report.

The purpose of this meeting, it is said, is to urge people to take up arms either by joining the regular army or the People's militia unit, and to impress upon them their duty to their country.

The report adds that it is the intention of the Chinese Communists to see all the common people are in uniform.

Reds Prepare On Coast

The Chinese Communist authorities have ordered the evacuation of all non-essential personnel in the east Kwangtung ports, including Swatow and Chaoyang, according to a Chinese press report.

The report adds that all raid precaution measures are being instituted and anti-aircraft guns are now mounted in various strategic points. At the same time, large reinforcements are said to have arrived in these coastal ports.

It is said the Communist authorities anticipate that Nationalist planes will raid these ports when they attack Quemoy.

Nudists In Street Procession

New Delhi, Apr. 29.

Naked members of an Indian nudist sect—the "Nagas"—led 500 sadhus (holy men) through the heart of the Indian capital tonight.

The holy men were making a peace procession designed to save the world from the horrors of a new war.

Carrying flaming torches, they moved over a four-mile route down Old Delhi's main streets—lined with more than half a million people.

As the Sadhus, fearsome figures in the flickering torchlight, passed slowly by, the crowds chanted the names of Hindu deities. Many prostrated themselves in the dust to kiss the sadhus' feet; others showered flowers and rose water on the holy men's near-naked bodies.

Police bans had forbidden the sadhus to march completely unclothed through the city, or to take elephants with them in their procession. Most of the marchers wore loin cloths, a few even clad themselves in saffron robes, but despite the police ban several "Nagas" turned up in characteristic costume—consisting only of beads or yellow face paint.

Soldier's Unhappy Marriage

Said To Have Led To Bigamy

Richard Buck, 26, Corporal, of 16 Infantry Workshop, REME, Hongkong, was ordered to be bound over for one year in $500 by Mr Latimer at Central this morning on a charge of bigamy.

The case was conducted by Mr R. H. Woodhead, ADCI, Hongkong assisted by Det. Sub-Inspector R. G. Laurel, O.C. Anti-Robbery Squad.

Prosecuting, Mr Woodhead said that defendant had been serving as a soldier in the British Army and was married to Agnes Pates at St Michael Church in Manchester in June, 1935. It had been confirmed from the Manchester Police that his wife was still alive and defendant had recently communicated with her. In June 1950, defendant was posted to his unit in Hongkong and later became acquainted with a local Chinese girl, Miss Daisy Ma Mai-ying, a waitress of the Allied Cafe in Kowloon, and they became very friendly. On December 9, last year, defendant and the girl were formally married at the Supreme Court.

Mr Woodhead then pointed out that for his Workshop's information the defendant's first marriage had not been very successful.

Defendant was married in June 1935 to Agnes Pates at St Michael Church and both of them stayed in his mother's home. Later they moved to their own home at Anderson and both of them were working. Defendant was then in a civil post as a decorator in a certain firm. He had been working overtime and had little time for pleasure. It was agreed between them that what they had earned should be put in a common pool; however, his wife failed to contribute. Unable to maintain the house, defendant left for his relatives.

Defendant also stated that in 1937, after they had moved into another house, their daughter Irene Mary was born, and for this reason his wife was not able to work and he was then compelled to put in long hours of overtime. It was during this period that their marriage deteriorated.

NOT HIS CHILD
In February 1939, defendant was called back to the Forces and was serving in France, Gibraltar and Malta. While he was serving in Malta, he received a message from his wife that she was going to have a baby. He applied for leave to go home and discovered that the child was not his. He was then advised by the Officer commanding to apply for divorce but he did not do so in the hope that after the war there might have a successful reunion.

For three months after their reunion in 1943 defendant found his life was happy, but once again the attitude of his wife changed and so he rejoined another unit. In 1945 defendant volunteered for overseas service and went to Belgium. He stated the reason he had volunteered was because of his unhappy married life.

In 1947, defendant left his wife and lived in his own house. In 1949, defendant was summoned before the Manchester Court for maintenance and was ordered to pay a weekly allowance of 30 shillings to his wife.

NO ROPE OF REUNION
While in Hongkong defendant received one or two letters from his wife but he could not see any hope of reunion between them. He said while in Hongkong he had given this matter much thought.

In June 1950, defendant first met Ma Mai-ying, a waitress in a cafe in Kowloon. He did not tell her that he was married. They became very friendly and he asked her to marry him last November. He said he sought to secure friendship permanently in order to find the happiness he had not had for some considerable time.

Capt. R. Thomas, adjutant officer, told the Court that he had known defendant since May 1949, and he was impressed with his hard work. Last year, he said, defendant appeared very much worried.

The Magistrate remarked that defendant had committed a serious offence and was liable to seven years' imprisonment. He took into consideration the circumstances and defendant's frank attitude, and he had decided to bind him over in the sum of $500 for one year.

WOMAN NEWSVENDOR ATTACKED

Two Men Charged At Sessions

The story of an early morning attack on, and robbery of a licensed newspaper vendor, who, as was her daily custom, was on her way to collect newspapers from the South China Morning Post, Ltd., was told when two men appeared on trial before the Senior Puisne Judge, Mr Justice Gould, in the Criminal Sessions this morning, on an indictment of robbery with aggravation.

The accused are Ip King-chun, 23, and Tang Yau, and they are alleged, together with another not in custody, to have robbed Ho Chu of a gold finger ring, a gold necklace and $150 in cash on February 16 last.

Mr A. Hooton, Crown Counsel, is conducting the case for the Prosecution. Accused are not represented by Counsel.

The Prosecutor told the Jury of six men and a woman that complainant, who was a licensed newspaper vendor, left her house in Stanton Street shortly after 5 a.m. on February 16 taking with her, as was her custom, the sum of $150 to the offices of the South China Morning Post, Ltd. to collect newspapers.

As complainant came down the stairs, she noticed that there was a man at the bottom. This man followed her, Counsel said.

Reaching Shelley Street she noticed another man and this person and the one who was following her, possibly together with a third man, bundled her into an alleyway off Shelley Street. One of her assailants seized her by the neck, pushed her to the ground and another searched her person. Whilst this violent assault upon her was going on complainant lost consciousness, the Prosecutor said.

When Ho Chu regained consciousness she discovered that a gold finger ring, a gold necklace and $150 in cash were missing. She also sustained bruises and injuries. She reported the matter to the Police.

The Prosecutor said that regarding the second accused there would be evidence that three days after the robbery he sold a gold finger ring of similar type and weight to that stolen, to a goldsmith. Also on the same day second accused sold a

SIDE GLANCES By Galbraith

FROM THE FILES 100 Years Ago

Correspondence

Sir,—On account of the long prevailing drought it appears that many of the inhabitants of Central Victoria, who are dependent for a daily supply of fresh water on private wells, now suffer great inconvenience those sources being almost dried up.

Besides these many others whose requirements were formerly abundantly supplied with this essential of life, at the Town end of the mountain stream, emanating through the ravine situated between Glenelg Gardens and Shelley's Park and themselves, I am inclined to think, most unjustly deprived of that resource, as heretofore available in their immediate vicinity, the present proprietor of the Park named before permitted at his discretion to divert the stream in question from its natural course, into a private reservoir on the hill, leaving the bed of the rivulet almost dry, and the sewer, formerly washed and cleansed by the surplus water daily running through it, in a stagnant state, with its accumulating filth.

If our over-worked Surveyor General, and Police authorities, who ought all of them, also, to know a thing or two about these matters, will not see with their own eyes, during their usual perambulations this encroachment on the public convenience, I would respectfully recommend His Excellency, our Governor, Governor Gordon and Legislative Council to enquire into the merits of my complaint—in behalf of the public without delay, and more over seriously to take into early consideration, how far the public health and convenience could be promoted, by the construction of one or more public watering places, centrally in the lower Town, for the sake of decency, and cleanliness, to be placed constantly under supervision of our indefatigable Police Superintendent.

Another important consideration, during the hot season, I would beg to suggest to the government, and which might be easily accomplished by the numerous Jail labourers who are fed and clothed at the public expense, namely the watering of the Streets daily, to prevent the annoyance of volumes of dust from flying all day into our dwellings; to remedy this destructive intrusion, sea water meanwhile might be used until suitable public reservoirs were obtained.

There is not, I am certain, a single inhabitant of the City of Victoria who would not feel benefited by, and most grateful for, such a refreshing boon, more particularly the householders in Queen's Road, whose inconvenience is greatly enhanced beyond other localities, by the additional, not only pedestrian but vehicle traffic to which they are daily and hourly exposed. Besides Mr Editor, your own contemplation, both bodily and mentally, may be long suffer from effects of the nuisance I now complain of, not an unimportant consideration either to a public man, or to your obedient Servant.

Colony's Weather

The mean range of the thermometer, during the month, has been some 6 degrees above the average. Of late we might have looked for falls during at least a third of the month, and to the depth of five inches or so, but we have not had even a passing shower. Albeit the season is a remarkable one, of all manner of prognostications, from it—the timid foretelling in the hope that a hot spring is but the forerunner of a pleasant and healthful summer. At one time Government made provision for correct registry of the weather; (perhaps it does now). There is no doubt but that, in time, we could, with a correct registry, arrive at a pretty accurate prediction; and as the skillful physician knows how to provide an antidote, so might measures be determined on, whereby health and comfort should be successfully ensured. If the branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, in this Colony, was under more active management, much might be done in this way.
